Managing A Small Business?

Discounts, Tax Advantages for Owners, Key Personnel and Spouses

Your firm can benefit from having top quality coverage. Depending upon your type of business, long term care insurance premiums for you and your spouse (and key personnel) paid for by the firm may be tax deductible.

- Employers can be selective when determining eligibility for key employee plans. Benefits are not considered taxable income to those individuals who are covered.
- Discounts are available for multiple lives with as few as five applicants. In some cases, underwriting guidelines may be modified for the group.
- Tax deductions are accessible to self-employed individuals, partnerships, C corporations or S corporations.

Consult with your tax professional to determine how the incentives relate to your business. Call your ACSIA professional to discover how to save and provide an important benefit to your business.

Learn The Facts

The facts are clear. Your risk of needing some type of long term care during your lifetime - either at home, in the community, or in a nursing facility - is very real. The facts speak for themselves.

- The need for extended care isn't limited to older Americans. Did you know that 40% of people currently receiving long term care are adults between the ages of 18 and 64?*
- Today 60% of individual over age 65 will require at least some type of long term care services during their lifetime, and 40% will need care in nursing home for some period of time.
- It will cost you far less for 20 years of long term care insurance premiums than it will for a single year of nursing home care.
- At home or in a facility, long term care is expensive. The average annual rate for a private room in a nursing home rose to approximately $91,248 in 2016.* The average rate for a semi-private room is $61,685.
- From 2005 to 2020, the population of age 65 or older and the population of age 85 or older will increase by almost one-half, (48% and 43% respectively) and the youngest seniors age 65 to 74 will increase by 70%.
- One of the greatest financial threats facing older adults is the cost of long term care.

Planning Today Means Having Choices Tomorrow.

Whether you choose long term care insurance or an alternative, today's long term care solutions offer a variety of choices and options, allowing you to select a plan that meets your needs and level of risk.

Long term care insurance premiums are based on age, and the younger you are, the lower the premium. You may be very surprised at how affordable good protection can be.

Benefits paid from your long term care policy are not taxable. Don't rely on your taxable retirement accounts for extended care when effective solutions are available.

The younger and healthier you are, the lower your annual cost. Discounts are generally available when you and your spouse purchase coverage from the same company. Discounts are often available for excellent health.

Other insurance products can offer you tax-deferred growth, principal protection and access to your funds when you require long term care services. They may be attractive when health conditions prohibit other solutions. They can also be part of estate plan providing long term care protection and legacy funds.
